

In the Small, Small Pond

by Denise Fleming

This easy-to-read Caldecott Honor Book (1994) has it all from minimal text, rhyming, and unique illustrations.

Read

Before:

Introduce the book and tell the children a little bit about it. Follow that with a comment or question that is related to the story such as, How many of you have ever been to a pond? Encourage a discussion so the children can comment, ask questions, and express their feelings. Set the stage for listening by asking an "I wonder" statement based on the cover illustration.

- I wonder what that green thing is?

During:

Encourage the children to comment on the illustrations, ask questions, and predict what will happen next in the story. Children gain confidence and a sense of achievement through being able to correctly predict how a story will end. Point out "rare words" (e.g., those words that are not commonly used in every day conversation) and help the children relate the meaning in a way that makes sense to them.

After:

Discuss the story. Ask questions...

- How big is a pond? Is it bigger than a lake?
- Has anyone ever seen a tadpole?
- Who knows what reptile tadpoles turn into?
- Do frogs eat insects and bugs?
- Do turtles make good pets? Why or why not?
- What do you think the herons are looking for?
- Who knows the name of the animal in the book with the claws?
- What kind of feet do ducks have?
- What was the raccoon doing at the edge of the water?
- Let's see if we can find the frog on each page.
